

ANTITRUST

Bracewell represents plaintiffs and defendants in antitrust litigation involving monopolization, conspiracy, distribution, tying and other claims, including claims based on state unfair competition statutes. We have particular experience in intellectual property-related antitrust issues such as licensing and cross-licensing issues and antitrust claims based on the enforcement and procurement of patents.

Our antitrust team represents clients from a wide range of industries, including energy-related businesses such as petrochemicals, cement, oil and gas production, refining and processing, and pipelines; consumer businesses such as airlines, alcoholic beverages, compact discs, funeral homes, retail gasoline and convenience stores; and medical devices and related industries. We represent service businesses such as advertising, computer services, commercial real estate, entertainment and sports, radio, telecommunications, and financial institutions.
