

ENERGY LITIGATION

With the firm's experienced litigation attorneys, Bracewell provides clients with comprehensive dispute resolution services. We represent plaintiffs and defendants in jury and bench trials at the state, federal and appellate levels and in alternative dispute resolution proceedings, including settlements, mediation and arbitration, both domestically and abroad.

We have represented clients in disputes involving all forms of energy, including electricity, oil, gas, liquefied natural gas, nuclear and coal, as well as renewable energy sources such as wind, biomass, geothermal and solar energy. Clients include U.S. and international companies involved in every step of the energy development process, including exploration, research, development, production, transportation, transmission, marketing and trading.

We provide effective counsel in disputes involving contracts and other agreements, facilities design and construction, service agreements, insurance