

■ CHARTER SCHOOLS

In contrast to traditional private and public schools, charter schools are a relatively new feature on the educational landscape. As such, they must address a unique set of challenges, many of which continue to evolve at a rapid pace.

Bracewell attorneys work closely with school administrators and boards on a range of issues, including the negotiation and documentation of management contracts between charter schools and educational management corporations; corporate formation and governance; real estate development, facility construction and properties management; and a range of financial matters including fundraising, debt and equity issues, and financial and tax reporting.
