

■ NANOTECHNOLOGY

Industries from manufacturing to healthcare are being transformed by technologies made with nanomaterials. Bracewell serves the needs of many development-stage companies engaged in this growing new field. We provide corporate, government relations, intellectual property and employment law services for a number of nanotechnology clients.

Our lawyers are well versed in the environmental implications of nanotechnology production. We advise nanotechnology clients on waste disposal and clean-up policies, lab safety requirements and customer warning responsibilities. Our lawyers speak frequently on the environmental regulation of nanomaterials at national and international conferences and other industry forums.