In 1974, Bracewell & Giuliani was the first major, out-of-town law firm to open an office in the capital city of Austin, Texas. Our Austin-based attorneys and staff meet client needs by providing full-service legal counsel in virtually every area of commercial and civil law of import to today's businesses. These include trial law and litigation; energy markets and regulation; government relations, advocacy and strategy; environmental; labor and employment; public and school; business and corporate; banking and financial services; tax; and intellectual property law.
